250th Battle of Brooklyn

28-30 August 2026

Brooklyn, New York

Event Highlights:

- Opportunities to bring to life the armies and civilians at the time of the Battle of Brooklyn, using the actual locations where history happened!
- Opportunities to fortify battle lines at Prospect Park, post sentries and other historically appropriate military activities.
- Possible route march of Howe's Regulars from Jamaica Pass to the battlefield in real time and arriving in time to turn the American left flank and with it the tide of Battle.
- Recreation of the Battle of Brooklyn at Prospect Park, on the ground where it happened in 1776, with recreated earthworks at Battle Pass/Flatbush Pass.
- Ceremonies commemorating the battle at Old Stone House, Fort Greene Park, and other locations.

Fort Greene Park, with Prison Ship Martyrs Memorial

- Fort Greene Park is the site of Fort Putnam, one of three forts on the high ground forming the inner fortified line defending the village of Brooklyn.
- The memorial remembers the soldiers captured at the Battle of Brooklyn that were sent to the prison hulks in New York Harbor.
